

Expedited Review

An expedited review by one member of the IRB may be conducted for the following types of projects. This person must have the expertise necessary to make such a decision and/or receive advisement from the appropriate expert.

1. Projects that involve the testing by anyone other than the student researcher of a student-designed invention, program, concept, etc., where the feedback received is a direct reference to the design, where personal data are not collected, and where the testing does not pose a health or safety hazard.
2. Projects in which the student is the subject of their research and the research does not involve more than minimal risk.